Nash--Reynolds

New Hope Baptist Church was decorated with arrangements of white gladioli against a background of fern and candelabra Friday evening, July 12, for the wedding of Miss Merle Elizabeth Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer D. Reynolds, of Appomattox, and Leslie Edgar Nash, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Nash, of Pamplin.

The Rev. Charles A. Addington officiated for the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Dan Harvey, pianist, and Miss Ann Moore, vocalist, presented the nuptial music program.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a bouffant floor length dress of candlelight matfinished satin. Braid trim edged the self fold of fabric at the square neckline and formed the miniature cuff of the long fitted sleeve. Unpressed pleats, attached to the long-torso bodice with a corded seam, spread to form a circular Cathedral train. Her fingertip veil fell from a cap of lace trimmed with pearls. She carried a white Bible showered with carnations and stephanotis.

Mrs. Hugh Mitchell, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and wore mint green taffeta with tight bodice and full skirt with matching bandeau finished with a brief visor-veil. She carried a nosegay of summer flowers.

Other bridal attendants were Mrs. Richard Carson and Miss Patsy Robertson in lavendar and Mrs. Ralph Harris and Miss Shirley Nash, in yellow taffeta. All attendants wore matching head pieces. Their bouquets were similar to that of the matron of honor.

Flower girl was Rosiland Lee Reynolds, niece of the bride. She wore white organdy over taffeta and carried a basket of rose petals.

Bobby Nash was his brother's best man and groomsmen were Weldon Covington, Ralph Reynolds, brother of the bride; Billy Massey, and Henry Richardson.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given in the church social hall.

The bride is a graduate of Appomattox High School and Phillips Secretarial College. She now holds a state secretarial position in Appomattox.

The groom is a graduate of Randolph-Henry High School, and served two years in the United States Army. He is now employed at Babcock and Wilson.

Lawson--Burnett

The wedding of Miss Louise Gills Burnett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rufus Burnett, and Harry Gordon Lawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Raymond Lawson, all of Appomattox, took place Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock in Hebron Baptist Church.

The Rev. Collie E. Rock, pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony before a background of palm, emerald foliage and a large arrangement of white gladioli and chrysanthemums, flanked by cathedral candlebras holding white tapers. The program of music was supplied by Mrs. R. Murrell Ferguson, pianist, and Ralph Tankersley, vocal soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of chantily lace over tulle and satin, fashioned with long pointed sleeves, a basque bodice and a full circular skirt of lace which termated in a cathedral train, Her veil of tulle was attached to a crown of orange blossoms and she carried a white prayer book topped with stephanotis centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Kemp L. Nixon, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a full length princess style dress of powder blue chrystallite over taffeta, with matching picture hat. Her bouquet was of daisies, matching the dress, and other garden flowers.

Miss Katherine East, of Roanoke, and Miss Suzanne Baldwin, of Front Royal, were her other attendants. They wore dresses and hats matching that of the matron of honor.

Fred H. Lawson served as his brother's best man. Groomsmen were Dr. Samuel H. Lawson, brother of the bridegroom; Thomas Ray Burnett and Aubrey L. Burnett, brothers of the bride, all of Appomattox, and E. Jackson Boggs, of Richmond.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception at their home following the wedding. The couple later left for a southern trip, for which the bride wore a white linen suit dress with matching accessories.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Lawson will live at 139 Valley Road in Charlottesville, where Mr. Lawson will continue his studies at the University of Virginia.

STUDIES UNDERWAY ON SPIDER MITE

The possibility that build-up of spider mites on plants may be influenced by fertilizer treatments is under investigation at VPI Agricultural Experiment Sation.

Researchers there are trying that and other approaches in an effort to find better methods of control.

L. R. Cagle, of the biology research staff, explains that the spider mite, commonly known as the strawberry mite, feeds on a wide range of food plants, and is found most often on low-growing plants. Severe injury can be caused by the feeding of the mite. Comparatively few mites can cause bean leaves to drop and potted red clover plants have been killed outright in the tests. Many other plants also fall victim to the pest.

IMPROVED VEGETABLE VARIETIES IS AIM OF STATION TESTS

New and better varieties of vegetables are the aim of tests underway at VPI Agricultural Experiment Station.

Many new varieties of tomatoes, for instance, are being tested at three localities in Virginia, Blacksburg, Norfolk, and Warsaw. Results of 1956 studies indicate that Moreton Hybrid is high in early and total yield and in uniformity. Chesapeake was low in yield in Blacksburg and Norfolk, but high at Warsaw. Chesapeake showed considerable resistance to cracking in Warsaw, where this trouble was prevalent in 1956. These studies will be continued for several years.

Cooperative work with the U. S. Department of Agriculture and 15 other states has resulted in the introduction of several new varieties of tomatoes, such as Homestead and Pinkshipper. The regional tomato program has made it easier to evaluate many new tomato selections, and will be continued.

A study of peppers is underway, and of the 11 varieties in the test, Pennwonder and Yola Wonder have produced higher yields than California Wonder. This year a new strain of Yolo Wonder will be added to the tests.

Potato varietal trials have been conducted in cooperation with the USDA for the past four yars. Each year the trials have contained about 15 promising new selections, and the standard variety grown in Virginia, Irish Cobbler.

In general, Kennebec is one of the best varieties for this aera. However, two new varieties, Saco and Merimack, have seemed promising from the standpoint of quality and yielding ability.

Breeding work in sweet potatoes is now directed toward getting new varieties which are high yielding, resistant to cracking and serious diseases, satisfactory in appearance, high in vitamin content, and good in keeping qualities.

Trials conducted in eastern Virginia the past four years indicate that several new sweet potato varieties are better in quality, nutritive value, and yield to the familiar Porto Rico. Allgold, Oklahoma 54, and certain other Oklahoma selections are among those which seem superior.

Scientists say the tests can lead to greatly improved nutrition. They found that the Allgold variey has more than three times as much pro-vitamin A as the Porto Rico will provide in the daily minimum requirement of vitamin A. And this variety will provide 144 per cent as much. Tests indicate that many of the sweet potato varieties are superior to Rico.
